The Winter IT school

Dates: January 25 till February 6

Location: Tomsk

Target Group: IT students

Language: English

One of key issues, which must be considered, when developing modern IT products, is how to fulfil all expectations that clients or programmers have/ For instance, clients want to see their products are of high quality and produced on time. While, programmers are interested that those programs are ready made and do not need any further moderations according to clients' wishes.

Many start-ups fail because of not being able to perform the tasks, which are given to them. Usually, the team is not able to complete its work in timely manner and provide good quality products within the set budgetary limits. The main problems occur after the signing of the contract by the manager of the team, who most of the time has no knowledge about those issues beforehand.

Our Winter School is a great opportunity to learn what one needs to do as a manager of a team in order to avoid all the mentioned issues and have successful project.

In a short period of time, we offer various master-classes for developing different skills. The topics we will be dealing with relate to issues such as risk management, team management, analysis and design architecture of software, demands and software requirements management and some others. It is important that all of you are going to work in small groups. This way we aim at preparing you to start your own start-up in the future.

Our team – young, motivated professional programmers, who have experience in developing start-ups. Currently, this team is the main developer of corporate IT-system at Tomsk State University.
